SNOW PLOW SMASHES INTO PASSENGER TRAIN

Rear End Collision on the Conway Branch With One Man Injured.

The Boston and Intervale train, No. 515, which left Boston at 1.31 Tuesday afternoon and this city at 3.12, was wrecked at Matthews station on the Conway branch, when it was run into by a snow plow. But one man was injured.

The train in charge of Conductor Baker and Engineer Berry, had stopped at the station when the snow plow in charge of Foreman Jesse Lyman, collided with the rear car. The force of the collision was sufficient for the nose of the plow that Newburyport would like the big snow this year.

BIG DAY FOR LOCAL WRECKERS

Locomotive 2019 a big compound on the Boston and Maine appears to be a hoodoo and for the second time in a few weeks kept the local wrecking crew busy. The machine while backing into the roundhouse at Jewett went on the ground and checked the operation of the turntable. This is the engine which recently went down the bank at Biddeford and which caused the railroad lots of trouble and expense in getting her back on the rail. She has only been out of the repair shops a few days.

TERRY CRIPPLED IN RAGING SEA

Crew Subsists for Two Days on Canned Goods

Norfolk, Pa., Jan. 9.—Battered and crippled as a result of her severe experience at sea, the torpedo boat destroyer Terry reached port today with one engine working. A thrilling story of their battle with wind and waves was told by her crew, every member of which marveled that they were alive to tell the tale.

The Terry had been assigned to scout at a distance of about 300 miles to the northeast of New York in the war game maneuver, and was somewhere off Cape Sable when the storm struck her late last Saturday. For 48 hours the craft was almost at the mercy of the seas. The wind blew a hurricane, washing clean the decks of the destroyer and carrying away not only every lifeboat, but heavy boxes containing tools, etc., which were fastened to the decks.

For two days there was nothing cooked on board the vessel, the 12 members of the crew having to live on canned goods while working incessantly at the pumps. All bedding and clothing was soaked, and when on Sunday night the Terry's steering gear was washed away it looked as if the end had come.

By heroic effort this was repaired, and the destroyer's commander, Lieut. Commander John C. Fremont, himself continued to keep the little boat's head to the storm and in this way kept her afloat.

Commander Fremont first intended to go into New York, but wireless orders from the battleship South Carolina directed that he proceed into Hampton Roads. It was at this morning when the Terry met the auxiliary cruiser Prairie, which conveyed her into the roads.

Commander Fremont upon arrival at Norfolk, gave shore liberty to his crew so that they might have a rest.

NEW CASTLE

January has given us a variety of lively weather. The atmospheric disturbances through which we have passed is remarkable in its way out it cannot be called a blizzard in the technical sense of that term. Nevertheless, the drop of some forty degrees in temperature some says within twenty-four hours is enough to startle our physical sensations and its association with a gale of wind which disturbed the slumbers of the community and strenuously buffeted pedestrians which is an unusual experience. As these January days succeed one another in wearisome monotony and in the midst of winter when life runs lowest and the cold gray days chill our blood and strikes a pessimistic note of dull foreboding, yet we know that the lily, the buttercup and the clover will not always be hidden under the snow. This thought comes to us with revelation of the steady increasing march of all things from "glory unto glory."

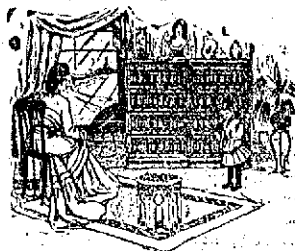

Miss Harriet N. Curtis is visiting relatives in Farmington.

Mrs. Nellie L. Winn after a short visit with Mrs. George Simpson, has returned to her home in Portsmouth.

Wallach Temple of Pythian Sisters held a most enjoyable whilst party Monday evening. Their next is being most pleasantly anticipated.

Mrs. Josephine Davidson is restricted to her home by a heavy cold.

Mrs. Elizabeth Worth Muller and Miss Rosa Worth, kin of the late Senator Jacob Worth, Brooklyn's political leader, have been visiting their cousin, Conrad Push. Mrs. Muller is a graduate of the Woman's Law University of New York, is a linguist and travels extensively. One year ago she was accorded a private interview with His Holiness, the Pope, and had untold honors shown her while in Rome. Mrs. Muller advocates the home life for women and also favors athletics, she being the only woman in Sullivan county to take out a license during the hunting season. Mrs. Muller is a member of the Portia club of the city of New York and is known as an opponent of the ballot. Miss Worth is a member of the New York Legislative League, and was on the committee of the Pilgrim Mothers' dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, the speakers including Rev. Antoinette Shaw, Lady Driggs of England and Miss Hay Ceres, Mrs. Emma Rowe, Brentwood.

Holloway Concerned in Robberies
Which Netted $459,000

Chicago, Jan. 9.—An amazing confession which, if true, solves the dynamiting of the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B. C. and the Panama Banking Company at Panama City, Panama from which operations cracksmen obtained plunder amounting to approximately $450,000 was made to Inspector Nichols Hunt today by Frank Holloway, 32 years old and an acknowledged safe blower.

In addition to the safe blowing Holloway, who is known under a score of aliases, it is alleged, admitted shooting to death two of his companions in crime in the wilds of South America in a fight over the division of the spoils.

Under a fierce grilling by Inspector Hunt and several other police officials, Holloway, it is said, acknowledged the robbery of several banks in Texas, but he denied several others that have been attributed to him.

Three valises and suitcases, which the prisoner says contain part of the $55,000 share he received in one of the bank robberies, are being sought by detectives. The confessed cracksmen is alleged to have informed Inspector Hunt that he may reveal the hiding place of the money, mostly Canadian currency.

Holloway would admit only the part he acted in the thrilling adventures and deeds which he confessed this life and "jobs" as he termed them, were revealed through his chance arrest as a suspected pick-pocket last night.

Although well dressed, Inspector Hunt felt certain that Holloway was a cracksmen, and immediately began questioning him along these lines. Holloway made a chance remark regarding the robbery of the Panama Banking Company of Panama City of $54,000 in February, 1910, and was soon subjected to a long grilling relative to it. Then he is said to have admitted his part in it.

Prior to leaving for South America, Holloway says he was arrested for blowing a safe in Herdell, Texas and subsequently released on bonds of $20,000. While at liberty pending a trial he became involved in a shooting at Tulsa, Ok., and was wounded in the right side. This forced him to jump his bonds, he says, and fled to Panama, where he soon joined professional safe blowers, with the result that the Panama Bank was dynamited.

After his tempestuous time in the Tropics Holloway, returned to this country and headed for the Pacific Coast.

"After lying around for a bit I picked up with some pretty good people, and the result was the Bank of Montreal at New Westminster, B. C., was blown," Holloway continued.

"What became of the money?" asked Inspector Hunt.

"It is planted," replied the prisoner, with a smile. "You don't think I would be crazy enough to carry it around, do you? I have three grips here and a lot of pretty Canadian money. I may tell you where it is later."

Holloway was reticent regarding the arrest of John McNamara, a former restaurant owner of San Francisco, who was taken in New York as a suspect in the Bank of Montreal robbery.

Superior court came in Tuesday morning but there was no business transacted, as some of the counsel was not ready to proceed with the case set for hearing. The case marked was that of Stephen H. Gale against the Exeter Building association, which is a bill in equity, the plaintiff alleging that the association is not a bona fide organization.

The witnesses were summoned and the counsel present, but as it would have taken several days to complete the trial, business elsewhere calling some of the counsel, it was postponed until Feb. 5. The attorneys engaged are Samuel W. Emery of Boston for the plaintiff and Kelley, Harding and Hatch of Portsmouth for the defendants. There will be no more delay in superior court until the term opens Jan. 16.

This evening there will be a joint installation of Sagamore and Fraternity lodges, J. O. O. F., of Newfields and Fraternity lodge of Rehoboth at the I. O. O. In the course of the past twenty-four hours there has been a change of over forty degrees in temperature and various kinds of weather which have greatly handicapped the running time on the Exeter and Portsmouth line.

On the Exeter and Hampton line a plow was kept out all night and there was not so much inconvenience caused by the snow which drifted on to the track. It was made heavy and hard to handle by the rain. Cars on that line were about all day.

The patrons of the Exeter and Portsmouth line are dreading a big storm as it might prove the undoing of the condition and has been ordered sold by the United States circuit court. It can be bought for $64,000 and despite the rumors that there have been offers made it is not likely to be purchased in the near future.

Foss has received orders from headquarters to ascertain the lowest financial output for a march from Exeter to Manchester, a distance of about six days' march, reckoning six miles a day and the cost for rations for a single man at twenty five cents.

Mail Carrier Arthur Vaughn is confined to his residence owing to illness, and his duties of carrying the mail back and forth from the railroad station is being attended to by Daniel Tewhill.

STILL A MYSTERY

No Trace of Charles R. Ballard at Wolfeboro

Somersworth, N. H., Jan. 10.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Charles R. Ballard, president of the W. T. Manufacturing Company of this city, is still unsolved.

A. J. Waterman, treasurer of the company, who has been to Wolfeboro, declares he has heard nothing of the report that Ballard's fish traps were still in place after the storm of Friday. It is said that a dipper, used evidently to dip up the ice from the holes, has been found between some trees near the Libby camp, which Ballard occupied.

Dean A. Ballard, father of the missing young man, was here over night with the latter's friend, Clayton R. March, a director of the company. He is almost overcome with grief over his son's disappearance. He believes that Charles has been drowned.

Mr. Ballard's personal effects were gathered up at the Hobart, where he lodged, by his father-in-law, Fred Coleworthy of Portland, and Mr. Waterman last evening and were taken to Portland today. It is firmly believed he was drowned.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Combined Vegetable Colander and Fruit Press.

A combined colander and press has been invented by a Minnesota man that will be found handy in the kitchen. The apparatus is bowl shaped and has a revolving blade or screw fitted in it and turned by means of a handle. An iron upright clamps to the edge of table or shelf and holds the colander firmly a few inches above the surface. Below the utensil is space for the receptacle into which the fruit or vegetables are to be strained. The material to be used is dumped into the colander bowl and the handle turned steadily. The blade squeezes the stuff against the sides of the bowl, and the substance is strained through the fine perforation. Hulls, skins, seeds, etc., remain in the bowl, and they will not pass through the holes. This device is especially handy for ricin potatoes or smoothing gravy.

Ham Mousse.

To vary the monotony of sliced or minced cold boiled ham try a ham mousse, which is very palatable and at the same time an excellent way to work up the odds and ends of a ham. Soften a large tablespoonful of gelatin in cold water to cover, then pour over it a small cupful of boiling stock, stir until dissolved, then strain and pour over two cupfuls of chopped lean ham; stand aside until it begins to congeal, then fold in one-half cupful of cream whipped solid and turn into a wet mold. Harden on ice, then unmold and serve on a bed of crisp lettuce leaves. Garnish with small blocks of currant jelly.

Pickled Cabbage.

Chop finely one bunch of celery and one onion, add two quarts of chopped white cabbage and mix thoroughly. Put one-half pint of vinegar in a double boiler, add one-half ounce each of powdered cloves and stick cinnamon and let steep for one hour. Pack the prepared cabbage in small jars, strain the spiced vinegar when cold into one quart of cold fresh vinegar and fill the jars. This pickle will keep well and will be ready for use in ten days' time.

Cranberry Fluff.

Cook a pint of cranberries in a quart of a pint of water until the cranberries pop open and then run them through a colander. Add the same amount of sugar as there is berry pulp by measure and boil the two together until they are as thick as marmalade. When cool add the whites of four eggs beaten stiff. Fold well together and bake until it sets—from five to ten minutes. Serve cold in sherbert glasses with whipped cream and chopped nuts.

RICHESON SENTENCED TO DEATH

Will Go to Electric Chain May 19--
Takes Sentence With a Demonstration.

Boston, Jan. 9.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, early this afternoon pleaded guilty to first degree murder by giving cyanide of potassium to his former fiancée, Miss Avis Linnell. Immediately afterwards he was sentenced to death in the electric chair at State prison during the week of May 19.

Richeson had been brought to the Court House a few minutes before noon, and a few minutes later the court officers notified the district attorney of the prisoner's arrival, and requested that he convey the information to counsel for Richeson. William A. Morse and John L. Lee, two of the counsel, responded to the notice and at 12.20 o'clock they were shown into the detention room where their client awaited them.

A quarter of an hour later, Judge Sanderson took his seat on the bench, and immediately afterwards Richeson was escorted from the detention room to a position at the rail beside the prisoner's pen. He leaned on one foot while Clerk Manning read the charge of murder in the first degree by giving the poison to Miss Linnell and the clerk then said that Richeson had pleaded not guilty to the indictment when he had been arraigned the first time. "Do you wish to retract that plea?" asked the clerk.

"I do," answered Richeson, in a voice steady but pitched in a high key.

The prisoner then said that he was guilty of murder in the first degree as charged in the indictment.

Judge Sanderson then explained the elements necessary to a crime of murder in the first degree, saying that malice aforethought would be present of a person, knowing the deadly effect of cyanide of potassium, entertained a plan to purchase such a poison and give it to another person. The other element of the crime would be proved if the person gave the poison to another. Judge Sanderson then continued:

"The only penalty provided by our statutes for murder in the first degree is death."

Judge Sanderson asked if the defendant had full knowledge of the penalty for such an offence, and the answer came calmly: "I have."

"Did you confer with counsel before making the plea?" asked the Court.

"I did," was the reply.

"Was the plea voluntary on your part?"

"It was."

"Do you wish to confer with counsel again?"

"My counsel are here."

District Attorney Pelletier addressed the Court, saying that before sentence was imposed he desired to read the confession. This he did; then he announced that the Commonwealth was prepared to go to trial with the case. The district attorney further declared that if it was competent for him to say so he would announce that in his opinion the Commonwealth had evidence sufficient to convince any ordinary jury that the accused was guilty of murder in the first degree.

Mr. Pelletier moved that the Court impose sentence immediately and Judge Sanderson asked: "Have you anything further to say before sentence is pronounced?"

"Nothing further than I have said," answered Richeson.

"It then becomes my duty," said Judge Sanderson, "to order that you be taken to the jail in this county and there kept in close confinement until within ten days of May 19 next. Ten days before that date you shall be removed to a death cell in the State Prison at Charlestown. On the week beginning on Sunday, May 19, you shall suffer death by the passage of electricity through your body."

Richeson showed no nervousness when the Court had finished pronouncing sentence and he remained waiting until a court officer took his arm and escorted him to the detention room again. There his counsel rejoined him as court adjourned.

Every seat in the court room had been occupied and, although intense interest was shown in the proceedings, there was no demonstration of any kind.

Evidently because of Richeson's weakened condition, he was not placed in the iron cage, but was allowed to sit in a chair just outside the rail of the bar enclosure until required to stand and plead and answer the questions.

By the time that attaches of the court house, attorneys, newspaper men and police officials had been seated there was no room for the curious public, despite the extra seats which had been placed in the courtroom. Before Judge Sanderson arrived Deputy Sheriff Cronin announced that the spectators were to keep their seats while the death sentence was being pronounced, at the request of Judge Sanderson, who did not wish to have any disturbance in the room while he was performing such a solemn duty. It was also announced that none would be allowed to make sketches during the proceedings or leave the room.

A Washington dispatch says: A New Hampshire delegation, headed by Clarence E. Carr, former candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket, and National Committee-man Eugene E. ## BALTIMORE GETS THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Democratic national committee today decided that the convention should be held June 25, one week after the Republican national convention.

Baltimore was selected as the place of meeting.

The committee on resolutions, headed by Clark Howell of Georgia, met this morning and prepared a report to be submitted later to the national committee dealing with the primary question and the call for delegates.

Primaries, it is believed, will be permitted wherever state committees desire.

Mr. Upham Presented.

Denver made the first bid for the convention, Charles F. Franklin of that city addressing the committee at length.

Denver offered reasonable and necessary expenses for the convention and promised to be liberal.

Roger Sullivan, amid laughter, said he had the unprecedented pleasure of introducing to the Democratic committee, Fred W. Upham of Chicago, assistant treasurer of the Republican national committee. Mr. Upham argued at some length for Chicago and when he had concluded some one proposed that he be made an honorary member of the Democratic committee. There was more applause, but no vote on this suggestion.

Baltimore Offers $100,000.

Baltimore followed Chicago and Representative Taft made the opening speech and Senator Rayner pursued the argument.

O. E. Herrick spoke for Robert Crane, chairman of the Baltimore committee and called out a storm of cheers when he drew from his inside pocket a certified check for $100,000.

St. Louis Presented Claims.

The claims of St. Louis were presented by E. P. Klotz, former Governor Davis R. Francis, Rolla Wells and James F. Smith. St. Louis offered to be more liberal in appropriations for the convention than ever before but no definite amount was offered. Edward H. M. Tierney then spoke for New York. As soon as the New York bid was in the committee began balloting.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 10, 1912

The sure road to happiness is found only by making others happy.

The walking about the city Tuesday morning caused many persons to forget their New Year's resolutions and comment on it in language more forcible than elegant.

Make somebody happy at this season of the year. If you have nothing else to give you can at least give a kind word and a friendly clasp of the hand.

During the year of 1911, the mints of the United States coined $65,700,850. Owing to the fact that the greater part of this was in fractional currency it will be rather a difficult thing to stop the tipping custom.

Municipal affairs are locally at most in a state of suspense. First it was the pre-election agony; now the candidates for municipal offices have until tomorrow night to worry; and after that there will come the annual free-for-all fight over the appropriation bill.

"They say" is the biggest liar in the world," exclaimed an old gentleman who was disgusted with an attack made upon the character of one of his young friends, and who, upon demanding the authority for such an attack, was told "They say." "They say" is but another name for the coward who has not the courage to back up his own charges.

Would it not be an act of courtesy on the part of some of the editors, who have in times past devoted considerable space in trying to convince their readers that the real name of the Portsmouth navy yard was the Kittery yard, to devote a little of their space, in saying a good word for the yard. At this time when an effort is being made in certain quarters to close the best navy yard on the Atlantic coast the aid of the newspapers can surely accomplish something.

It is doubtful if the military history of New Hampshire furnishes a parallel to the Civil War record shown by members of the family of Stephen B. Robinson, born in 1801 in the town of Epping, and his wife, Mary Smith Hubbard of Candia. Long since deceased, they were respectively the father and mother of a family of twelve children, nine boys and three girls. When the Civil War broke out seven of these boys enlisted and were in the service at the same time. In addition there was a grandson, Henry Robinson, son of Samuel H. Robinson, who enlisted in the 10th New Hampshire Regiment, the same regiment his father was attached to.

THE NAVY AND THE STORM

The manner in which the vessels of the Atlantic fleet weathered the tremendous storm which swept the coast last Saturday is good assurance that they are highly efficient in all the requirements of a sea fighting force. They have repeatedly demonstrated in so-called "war games" that they are capable of effective maneuvers. Their crews are trained to an extraordinary degree of efficiency, as a series of tattered target sails attests. Now they have just gone through a gale which tried them to the utmost, and with the exception of a few minor accidents and the loss of a few small boats from the decks they have come through it, even to the smallest craft in the fleet, in creditable form. According to the reports thus far received every man on board the warships was true to his trust throughout the trying hours of violent winds and heavy seas, meeting emergencies as they arose, obeying orders implicitly and working with unflinching courage to bring his vessel into port. Such experiences, while extremely trying, are valuable in that they demonstrate the quality of the navy and strengthen the confidence felt by the country in its defensive force at sea.—Washington Star.

BIRD EYE VIEWS

Detective Burns is perfectly willing to tell all he knows without waiting for anybody to give him the third degree.

The college professor who favors hissing in the theatre should pause. He may help to establish a system which might cause a leaky steam pipe to be mistaken for a critic.

Senator Robert Taylor declares that he has quit playing the fiddle. But our great artists are always circulating notices of farewell appearances.

Col. Whitterson's protest against Roosevelt makes it clear that the colonels of the country can never be persuaded to stand together.

It will be primarily a "Jackson" dinner, but other prominent American names will come up for more or less incidental consideration.

When it comes to developing nominations for the Annapolis Club the Arctic circle has Oyster Bay beaten to a frazzle.

In spite of Maryland's bad roads the members of the legislature manage to get together at Annapolis once in a while.

No doubt Persia will keep on appointing new officials till it secures an outfit entirely satisfactory to Russia.

That Jackson banquet never claimed that it was going to be a strictly a peace dinner.

Whatever cities take the big conventions, Washington remains the storm center for national committee-men.

The report now comes that King Menelik of Abyssinia is paralyzed. This is a more generous rumor than those which constantly announce his funeral.

Why waste more words? Mr. La Follette has made it clear that he is neither a stalking horse, a walking horse nor a dark horse.

Although one swallow does not make a summer, the average citizen would be content to have it understood that one snowstorm suffices for a winter.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

A Peculiarly Contemptible World. It is painful to observe how this wicked old world is given to "unctious and odious hypocrisy."

Not the three nations of the United States, England and France alone but pretty much all other nations are now becoming involved. Secretary Knox is receiving answers to his identical note on the proposal to make the International Prize Court at The Hague a general court of arbitration, from practically all the more important Governments of the earth. They differ as to methods of application but are one in devotion to the principle.

This is even more "peculiarly contemptible." It would be disheartening but for the chance that the said Governments have not as yet heard from the first prize peace man of the time that real peace is to be had only through demonstrations of force.—New York World.

Confessions in Murder Cases

Courts of justice neither in England nor in this country are disposed to swallow confessions of capital crime with avidity and closed eyes. The circumstances and other evidence will be noted, for men have been known voluntarily or without sweating to make false confessions. It was for this reason that Gov. Andrew of Massachusetts fifty years ago refused to sign the death warrant issued by a judge on a plea of guilty and without trial. So at a later time in England counsel for the prosecution with drew from the

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY KITTERY LETTER

Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

At the Portsmouth Navy Yard the wages of some of the laborers have been cut down from $1.50 to $1.25 and $1.00.

Most or all the minors employed have been discharged. The pay of the mechanics we believe is unchanged, and the complaints were that they had to go to work earlier; (though we guess they would have to get up still earlier in the morning, and work harder too, to earn the same wages elsewhere) and the large gang of borers also mistakenly considered themselves included among the laborers. The Commandant we are told referred the matter to a committee of four eminent mechanics on the yard, and acted on their report. A communication from Vox Populi, on the hardship and injustice of reducing the poor laborers' pay only, we could not find room for. Neither did our former remarks refer at all to them, as having no cause of complaint, but to some of the mechanics who were publicly growling about they know not what.

Both boards of the new City Council were in session Thursday evening. The usual standing committee where a man confessed to murder committed twenty years before and there was no other evidence gave the testimony of persons who had not known or could identify him.

But while Massachusetts law still antagonizes the position taken by Gov. Andrew the practice prevails there of refusing a plea of guilty in capital cases and having some form of trial; and this course may be followed in the case of the Rev. Richardson who admits the poisoning of Avis Linnell.

It may be well as an exception in such cases, but as a rule without exception it would too often make or legal procedure that solemn mockery which impelled Dogberry to renounce the law an ass. And the Richeson case does not call for exception treatment. The circumstances too strongly support the truth of the confession.—New York World.

THE 47TH STATE

By proclamation of the President New Mexico is admitted as a state, the 47th in the Union. Presently she will be followed by Arizona and next Fourth of July there will be 48 stars in the flag. Thus a long struggle is crowned with triumph. It has been a number of years since these territories began clamoring for admission to the sisterhood of states. At length their application received endorsement in the national platform of both parties but even then obstacles were in the way. The course of formalities was tedious, and it is not until now that the consummation is reached. New Mexico makes an important and picturesque addition. Territorially she is one of the largest of the states, with an area of 122,000 square miles. Texas is more than twice as large, but the only others which exceed New Mexico in size are California and Montana. Arizona is smaller with 112,000 square miles. As to population New Mexico is rather sparsely settled, and her 330,000 inhabitants spread over so large an area make a thin showing. She is, however, of state size in population, as compared with other states when admitted, and so is Arizona. Maine had but 298,000 when admitted in 1820, and Missouri but 66,000 when she came in the mittes were announced in each. In Board of Aldermen a resolution was adopted authorizing the Mayor to employ the services of the late City Clerk whenever in his opinion it would be for the interest of the city. Invention, George A. Wiggin was elected City Messenger, receiving nineteen votes; scattering, five.

next year. California, admitted in 1850, had 92,000 population; Nevada had 42,000, Colorado 190,000, Idaho 84,000, North Dakota 318,000, South Dakota 328,000 and Montana 132,000. Thus New Mexico does not suffer from the comparison, and she has plenty of room to grow.

But this population is different from that of any other state, except Arizona. The early Spaniards made a deep and lasting impression on that part of the country about the sources of the Rio Grande. The geographical nomenclature is half Spanish, as well as the people, and Spanish or Mexican customs, language and institutions persist. Take the county names for instance. There are such as San Juan, Rio Arriba, Taos, Mora, San Miguel, Santa Fe, Sandoval, Las Vegas, Otero, Dona Ana, Luna, Sierra, Bernalillo and Volcena, mingled with such Yankee ones as Union, Quay, Roosevelt, Lincoln, Grant, Colfax and McKinley. And the towns and cities show the same admixture. New Mexico was of course a part of old Mexico, being first entered by the Spaniards in the 16th century. But the first colonists were killed or driven out by the Indians, and it was over a hundred years before Spanish authority was finally imposed over the province. As the result of the war between the United States and Mexico, the territory comprising New Mexico and Arizona was ceded to this country in 1848. The territory was organized in 1850, and in 1863 the western half became the territory of Arizona. The growth of New Mexico has been slow, but it has great natural wealth, particularly in minerals, and a prosperous future seems assured.—Portland Press.

LOWEST BAROMETER SINCE PORTLAND STORM

A Variety of Weather, From Pouring Rain to Nearly Zero With a Gale of Wind.

There was certainly a variety of weather served up in this city on Tuesday, and what is more certain brands of cold weather and wind are promised for today.

Tuesday came in with a howling snow storm which changed an hour later to a driving southeast rain storm, and it poured for several hours. During the forenoon the wind shifted to the north-west and increased so that during the afternoon it was blowing fresh and the temperature was going down in jumps.

The wind increased during the evening and at midnight it was but ten above zero with a falling glass and the wind blowing half a gale. This combined with the terrible walking for it was ice everywhere, made it a bad night to be out. The street department had a gang out with sand but the wind blew it off the sidewalks as fast as it was put on.

There is every prospect of something doing for the barometer was down last evening to 28.70, the lowest noted by the sea going men in this vicinity since the Portland storm of fourteen years ago. This would indicate a gale of wind.

years the postmaster at Newfields. She had been a resident of Manchester over thirty years. Her survivors include the widower, James A. Folsom, the well known real estate dealer and years ago was one of Manchester's leading clothing dealers; a stepdaughter, Mrs. George M. Ayres of Portsmouth; an uncle, George D. Locke of Suncook and two cousins Mrs. Ira Moore and Mrs. Albert Clough of Suncook.

Mrs. Folsom was a member of the First Baptist church and a consistent worker in the cause of the church, from the circles of which she will be strongly missed. She was a member of the Woman's federation and a vice president of the Settlement Association of New Hampshire. Mrs. Folsom was extremely interested in the case protecting dumb animals and was a director of the Animal Rescue league, which has its headquarters in Manchester. Her interest in the cause of the dumb animals was enthusiastic and she was one of the directors who was always found at her post.

He is survived by one daughter, Miss Hamsom, with whom he resided.

The inventor appeared at his home one day with a number of howling pigeons. "Why this bunch?" queried his wife. "My dear," he replied, "I feel sure that they will make our fortunes. By closely observing their habits and methods I shall make an invention which will bring us millions and provide mankind with something of which it stands in dire need. Yes, my dear, I have given up for the nonce my effort to find a cure for seasickness and a cheap substitute for ivory billiard balls." "What do you propose to invent?" inquired his wife. "Something that will cause my name to be blessed in every home in this land," he replied. "A honing umbrella! Think of it—no more permanent borrowing by unscrupulous friends—no more! But she had resumed her housework.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Last Straw.

An old woman entered a savings bank the other day and walked up to the desk.

"Do you want to withdraw or deposit?" asked the clerk.

"Now, O! don't. O! wants to put some in," was the reply. The clerk pushed up the book for her signature, and said, "Sign on this line, please."

"No whole name?"

"Yes."

"Before O! was married?"

"No, just as it is now."

"O! can't write."—Cambridge Tribune.

Doubtful.

"They tell me," said little Blinks, "that chauffeurs as a class are very superstitious. I wonder if it is true?"

"I doubt it," said Harkaway. "They don't believe in signs, anyhow. We have a sign up at Squeebawker's reading, 'Speed limit in this town eight miles,' and not one chauffeur in a hundred pays any attention to it."—Harper's Weekly.

Looked Suspicious.

NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

Didn't Fight That Way.
The late General Gordon of the Confederate army was a young man when the civil war began. He organized a company in Kentucky and journeyed with his men by easy stages through Virginia. Everywhere he grew more enthusiastic in his denunciation of the Yankees. Finally at Petersburg, Va., he made a brilliant speech and declared amid tremendous enthusiasm: "Why, fellow citizens, we can lick the Yankees with poisons." Years afterward, when the country was at peace and General Gordon had settled in Virginia, he was running for congress. He arrived at Petersburg to make a speech, and while in the middle of it a grizzled Confederate veteran rose. "Say, general, wasn't you here at the beginning of the war?" he said. "I was," said Gordon. "Didn't you all say we could lick the Yankees with poisons?" "I did," replied Gordon. "Well, then, why didn't we?" asked the veteran. "Because the darn Yankees wouldn't fight with poisons," vociferously yelled Gordon.—Boston Transcript.

"DIDN'T YOU SAY WE COULD LICK THE YANKEES?"

Almost an Angel.
George Ade was talking at a June wedding in Chicago about matrimony, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "Matrimony is perhaps a little too much idealized," he said. "These June brides, radiant under their white veils in a glimmer of June sunshine, seem capable of changing earth to heaven, but as a matter of fact they are not capable of anything of the sort. "I am in hearty sympathy with old Brown, to whom young Black said at a wedding: "A good wife can make a veritable angel of a man." "Yes, that's so," old Brown agreed. "My wife came near making one of me with her first batch of doughnuts."

WHAT THE GREEN BAG CONTAINED.

Old Time Barrister Made the Victim of a Joke.

The old fashioned green bag that lawyers carried to court in the long ago—the kind Dickens describes in "David Copperfield"—and in the case of Janydice versus Janydice—made its appearance at the city hall in Kansas City a few months ago, when Judge John G. Park used it to carry a voluminous mass of legal papers to the supreme court at Jefferson City. "You don't see many of the old green bags these days," Judge Park said. "I don't know of any other in the city." Many stories cluster around that ancient emblem of the profession—the green bag. When Erskine was in the full tide of success as a barrister some of his fellow lawyers, wishing to annoy him, hired a boy to ask him as he was coming into court with his green bag if he had any old clothes for sale. "No, you young rascal!" said Erskine. "These are all new suits."—Case and Comment.

An Effective Speech.
One of the shortest but most effective speeches ever made in the house of commons was the result of the speaker breaking down in his maiden speech. Lord Ashley, who sat in the commons in 1895, before he succeeded his father as Earl of Shaftesbury, was a staunch supporter of a bill to grant the services of counsel to prisoners tried for high treason. When he rose to speak he found himself dumb. The house cheered him as a new member, and by a desperate effort he uttered one sentence. "If, sir," said he, "I who now rise only to give my opinion on the bill, am so confounded, that I am unable to express what I proposed to say, what must the condition of that man be who, without any assistance, is pleading for his life?" He sat down, having convinced his audience.

TIMELY BREVITIES

A raw source of radium has been found in South Australia, near the Queensland border. In some parts of Australia the telephone is regarded as an amusement rather than a necessity. According to a prominent minister in New York, there is one saloon for each sixty voters in the metropolis. Cooling and equipping the ships passing through the Panama canal is expected to become an immense business. The use of wooden flooring is on the increase in Italy, where formerly the demand was largely for marble, tile, and cement.

Britain's latest super-Dreadnought cruiser, the Princess Royal, will have cost over $10,000,000 by the time she is fully completed. Mery, a three-year-old dog belonging to Dr. B. H. Grosser of Chicago, has had nine teeth extracted and gold ones substituted.

An Amsterdam chemist claims to have invented a liquid soap a single quart of which will wash a person's hands 2,500 times.

Coal ashes are combined with soda and copal varnish by a German inventor to make an artificial stone that resembles marble.

China is forming the American chewing gum habit. A Hongkong firm last year sold $5,000 worth of the American manufactured article.

A roulette wheel contained in the handle of a parasol is the latest Paris novelty. It can be used for gambling at any place or moment.

The use of pitch in making fuel briquets in England has developed a species of cancer among the workers in that industry to an alarming extent.

Canadian fruit men in Ontario are going out of pear growing and, especially in the Niagara region, are substituting a peach tree wherever a pear tree falls.

After more than fifty years' service in all parts of the world an American sailing ship has been purchased by a man who will convert it into a floating cannery for Alaska salmon.

Clifford B. Harmon, the first wealthy American sportsman to take up aviation as a sport, announced that he never would fly again in deference to the wish of his family and friends.

Deep diving is the special mark of progress in building submarine vessels now. The Salmon went down 141 feet recently off Prudence island and remained at that depth twenty minutes.

German wine growers are being encouraged by the government to scatter nesting material and erect bird houses in their vineyards to attract feathered foes of insects that prey upon their vines.

English growers are finding it more profitable to send their lavender to market in bunches instead of selling to perfume makers, the result being a surprising rise in the price of oil of lavender.

The earthquake disturbances of September and October last in southwestern Alaska brought to the surface scores of gold mines which will add millions of dollars to the wealth of the people of the territory.

The great heaps of refuse to be seen adjoining coal and iron pits throughout Scotland, which have always been looked upon as useless waste product, are now found to be valuable in the manufacture of bricks.

American shoes seem to be very popular in southern France. Show window displays in the stores are full of French made shoes bearing such labels as "American shape" and "American style" to attract buyers.

The municipal council of Paris aims to teach history by means of street names. Two of the signs already in place read: "Rue Rivoli—French victory, 1797." "Avenue Victor Hugo—French poet and novelist, 1802-1885."

During the past year little improvement was made in the Spanish railway system. Madrid is connected with the great centers of population and industry by one nominally fast and one intentionally slow train a day.

The science of air pressure was first developed in tunnel building for subways. It is now proposed to apply the same principles of compressed air to prevent the influx of water when a ship has been in collision or pierced by shot.

The following official notice is posted on the wall of the municipal electric power plant of a town in the south of Germany: "To touch these wires means instant death. Any one failing to respect this warning will be prosecuted and fined."

There are in New York state 1,000 active organizations formed for the purpose of advancing one or more phases of agriculture. This number includes town, county and state organizations. The state grange, numbering 100,000 members, heads the list.

A circular soliciting subscriptions for a certain publication was recently sent out to the alumni of Princeton university. It contained this sentence: "It is not only recommended by well read men all over the country, but also by members of the Princeton faculty."

A Japanese wood carver, Hananuma Mamakichi of Tokyo, has carved a figure so like himself that when the two are placed side by side it is said to be almost impossible to tell which lives and breathes and which does not. Mamakichi has faithfully reproduced every scar, vein and wrinkle to be seen on his own body.

SNAPSHOTS AT CELEBRITIES

H. C. Parker, Who Would Scale Mount McKinley.

Professor Herschel C. Parker, formerly of Columbia university, who has just started on his third attempt to scale Mount McKinley, Alaska, is hopeful of reaching the summit of the highest peak in America. "I think there is a chance that we shall make the top," he said just before starting. Mount McKinley is 3 degrees south of the arctic circle and about 137 miles from the Pacific coast. It has been triangulated at 20,300 feet in height. On his first attempt in 1906 Professor Parker was obliged to turn back after getting within a few miles of its base. In 1910 he reached an altitude of 10,300 feet, while he claims was the "summit" attained by Dr. Cook, many thousands of feet from the actual top. Professor Parker has been prominent as a mountain climber and explorer for many years. He is a native of New York city, forty-four years old and was graduated from the school of mines, Columbia university, in 1890.

Head of the Mine Workers.
John P. White of Oskaloosa, Ia., who has just been re-elected president of the United Mine Workers of America, belongs to the conservative school of trades unionists. His strength as a leader will doubtless be put to the test next spring when the working agreements expire. For the first time in many years the contracts between the operators and both bituminous and anthracite miners expire on the same day. April 1 is the day the new contracts should begin, and unless an agreement is reached before that date the mining of coal may cease until matters can be adjusted.

President White was born at Coal Valley, Ill., forty-two years ago. At the age of fourteen he entered the mines, continuing his education in the night schools. In 1899 he was elected secretary-treasurer of the Iowa district of United Mine Workers, subsequently becoming vice president of the general body. Last year he was chosen president over Tom L. Lewis, the incumbent at that time, and won again this year over the same opponent.

Dr. Jowett's Story.
"Dr. J. H. Jowett believes it is the minister's not the congregation's fault if the church doesn't go."

The speaker, a member of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, in New York, smiled and continued: "Dr. Jowett once told me that he sided with an old lady who always went to sleep during the sermon time. "Why don't you take snuff during the sermon?" the minister said to her. "That will keep you awake." "Why don't you put the snuff in your sermon, sir?" retorted the old lady."—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

FOR THE CHILDREN IN THE REALM OF FASHION

Fellow Travelers.
I traveled on the train one day. Across the way there sat A dainty little maid. With a pretty curly hat. Her cheeks were plump and rosy, And her eyes were very blue, And as for her behavior, It was good enough for two.

"The lady" wanted cookies; then She had to have a drink. She didn't give the passengers A minute's time to think. While little Rosy Cheeks just sat And smiled across at us. "The lady" squirmed and wriggled round. And made a constant fuss.

In fact, you'll be surprised to hear, As I was then to see, How far superior a child Can to her elders be. "The lady" who was with her In whining tones was heard. But I did not hear Miss Midget Speak a single fretful word.

So next time I go traveling, As happens soon I may, I hope that only one of them Will be aboard that day. And if a fairy asks me which I'll tell the little elf I much prefer Louise's doll To Miss Louisa herself! —St. Nicholas.

A Cycling Mouse.
A boy leaving town last summer left his bicycle suspended from the joists in the basement of his home by means of ropes in order to remove the weight of the machine from the tires. On his return he went into the basement and was greatly surprised to see the front wheel of the machine rapidly revolving. He stared spellbound at it for some minutes, unable to discover any cause for the motion.

But as his eyes became accustomed to the dim light he observed a small dark object remaining always at the highest point of the wheel, and at last made it out to be a mouse running on the outside of the tire. The weight of the animal caused the wheel to turn, and the mouse was forced to travel continually upward to avoid being thrown. It knew not where. When the wheel had been stopped and the little creature lay exhausted on the floor, the young man looked at the cyclometer and found that it had registered eighteen miles. This occurrence was amply substantiated by witnesses. The cyclometer had been set at zero when he left the city, and the bicycle had not been tampered with during the summer.—Brooklyn Eagle.

How, When and Where.
"How, when and where" is a rather amusing variation of the popular "twenty questions." During the absence of one of the players an object is chosen, and on his return he seeks to discover it by the replies given to the three questions. "How do you like it?" "When do you like it?" "Where do you like it?" which he puts to each of his companions. To each a sensible answer must be given. One question must be asked all the way around the company before the next question is put and this disposed of before it is followed by the third.

Suppose the word agreed upon to be "chest." The answers to "How do you like it?" might be: "Healthy," "Filled with gold," "Three feet square; to "When do you like it?" "When I am traveling," "When I am traveling;" to "Where do you like it?" "In my body," "In my bedroom," "In my strong room."

If the questioner fails to find out the chosen article he is informed what word was selected and has to try his fortune again. If he succeeds his place is taken by one of the other players, whom he may select.

Blind Target.
The players form in a line, facing one player—the target—who stands ten or fifteen feet in front of the line with his back turned. The line has a ten of basket ball and passes it from one to another. The target counts ten, and when he reaches ten the one then holding the ball may hit him with it. The target turns and guesses who threw the ball. If he guesses correctly the thrower becomes the next target, or if the thrower misses the shot he becomes the target.

If the target fails to guess who hit him he remains in his place and again counts ten, giving some one else a chance to throw at him. As there is no score, the game may continue as long as the interest keeps up.

About Cleanliness.
The importance of cleanliness may not at first appear to the average boy, but at this season of the year, when he likes to play out in the open air and generally gets his clothes soiled, does he ever brush them off or try to repair the damage which has been done? Usually not. The first essential is to have clean hands and face. Nothing is so discouraging to a boy's mother as a dirty face in spite of all she has said. Some boys seem afraid of water, but that is probably because they do not understand. Cleanliness should always be thought of, even though it means application of water frequently.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Fruit Tree Game.
You all know the "donkey" game. Well, here is one appropriate to the season, played in similar fashion: The outline of a bare tree is sketched in charcoal on a large square of muslin. Bits of pink muslin, in the shape of fruit are to be pinned as near to the tips of the branches as possible by the players. Those who pin nearest the ends of the branches are the prize winners.

Misses' Party Gown.

This pretty gown for a young girl may be made of marquisette, in white or pale pink. The skirt is laid in deep tucks, and over it falls a plain over-

DRESSES OF MARQUINETTE AND LACE.

The bodice is bordered with heavy lace. The bodice is cut with a square neck and empire waist. Bands of embroidery edged with lace cross the shoulders. A silk sash is tied at the side.

Breakfast Caps.
One sees quantities of those bewitching breakfast caps—dainty little affairs of net and sheer lace and tawny and sometimes dotted swiss. The shops show numbers of them, but most women and girls prefer to make them; not only because they may do so much more reasonably frequently, but because they may make them different from the ready made sorts. Sometimes they are trimmed with real flowers, others with satin flowers or of delicately colored ribbons, or ribbon rosettes and bows are used with much effectiveness.

STREET GOWNS OF SOMBER COLORS

Brilliant Effects Reserved For One Piece House Gowns.

The woman who is really smart in her apparel and who dresses for convenience as well as for fashion now adopts the one piece frock, with its outer coat of any material she chooses and removes this in the dressing robe at a public or private affair.

The insistence of a certain class of women upon this kind of costume for the house has persuaded many women to adopt it. As soon as they have found its convenience and as soon as they realize in what good taste it is they see to it that they dress in this manner for all like affairs. It is because of this new turn in affairs that women have gone back to somber street colors for their coat suits and indulged in the plumage of the peacock for their one piece frocks. If they desired such coloring, there was a season not long ago when vivid red serge and broadcloth suits were not only worn on the street in the morning, but carried into all social affairs under the roof during the afternoon.

Then there came a season of bright green suits and coats that flashed colors and cuffs of brilliancy, but this garishness has died down, and today women choose black, mottled gray, raven blue and elephant gray for the street. One rarely sees a departure from this rule of four. The one piece frock has done it. As long as well dressed women decide that the coat suit is not available for house wear, then all desire for brilliant colors in it ceases. Therefore we have the red satins, the coral crapes and the Poppetian chiffon for afternoon and evening wear only.

Color Schemes.
Combinations of colors and materials that are unusual continue to be the chief aim of dressmakers, whose efforts are as successful as they are daring, which is saying a great deal. Ordinary effects and those that have been played upon until it would seem the last variation must have been run are made to give in yet another scheme, made possible by the fact that there are absolutely no limitations touching the vague fabrics or the manner of their manipulation.

BOWLING

At the roll off at the Arcade alley on Tuesday evening, White was the winner with a fine total of 319. The young Kingsbury boys, Clint and Samuel, were there with the goods, Clint winning second money with 305, and "Speed" 302. The fourth man was Woods, 296. There will be a bowling match at the Arcade alley on Wednesday evening, a three team match, with Poehler, White and Norton against Renner, Woods and Hau, which will be for a five string match.

ALL BUT MIXED IT UP

The severe condition of Market street was disturbed this morning when a well known aspirant for office ran into one of the councilmen. Things were decidedly torrid for a while and they both told each other where they got off. Spectators gathered and expected that a few short arm jabs might be exchanged, but it was all done in talk. In parting they had an understanding that they would meet again and the end was nowhere in sight.
